

LABORATORY ANIMAL SERVICES DIVISION

Dr. Aye Win Oo
BVS(IAHVS, Yezin), MVMedSc(ROK)

1. Historical Background

The Laboratory animal services division was established in 1965. It was named as the Animal House at that time. In December 1973 due to the increasing population of the laboratory animals, the animal houses were extended to include an adjacent wooden building. This building was used for the breeding of guinea pig and rabbit. The current building was built in 1980 with the support of the Japanese International Corporation Agency (JICA). Expansion of two stored building was extended in 1990-91. The first head of the division was U Soe Lu Kyaw, a research officer. During the period of 50 years, there have been a total of 8 heads. Dr Aye Win Oo, research officer, is a current head of the division since 2007 to date. There are a total 18 staff in Laboratory Animal Services Division. The responsibilities of the Division are: to produce and maintain good quality laboratory animals, to maintain and build up research facilities for experimental animal models, and to provide various strains of laboratory animals to various divisions from Department of Medical Research and other Institutes for their research purposes and to conduct research works on experimental animals.
